Rocky owes 1 million taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller has disclosed he will have to pay an additional $903,718 in federal income and gift taxes, a figure likely to soar past the $1 million level when interest is included.

Rockefeller's disclosure was the result of an Internal Revenue Service audit rejecting more than $1.2 million in deductions. It added an explosive new note to the growing controversy surrounding the former New York governor's vice presidential nomination.

In recent weeks, Rockefeller's chances have been damaged by revelations that he gave nearly $2 million in gifts to present and former aides and that his brother Laurence financed a campaign biography attacking Arthur J. Goldberg, the governor's 1970 election opponent.

Rockefeller made his disclosure Friday night in a letter to Sen. Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., and Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., chairmen of the Senate Rules and House Judiciary committees that are considering the Rockefeller nomination.

The former New York governor is scheduled to resume testimony before the Senate panel on Nov. 13. The House committee has yet to schedule hearings, and there are growing indications Congress will be unable to act on the Rockefeller nomination until at least next year.

An aide said Rockefeller won't have to pay any penalties but that he will add interest at the rate of 6 per cent a year. A rough calculation showed that would add at least another $100,000 to his tax bill.

In the letters, Rockefeller said the audits required him to pay an additional $820,718 in federal income taxes and an additional $83,000 in federal gift taxes, virtually all of it because of the disallowed deductions.

That compared with the $432,787 in back incomes taxes, plus $30,000 in interest, that former President Richard M. Nixon had to pay when the ICS audited his tax returns earlier this year.

The principal items disallowed by the IRS were $824,598 in deductions for office and investment expenses, and $420,649 in deductions for charitable contributions, largely relating to unreimbursed expenses of a 1970 trip Rockefeller took to Latin America for the Nixon administration.

There was no indication of the specifics of the deductions disallowed by the IRS. There also was no indication of any illegality.

Rockefeller said that at the time he submitted the figures to the two committees, federal tax audits were in process for 1969, 1970 and 1971, and had not yet begun for 1972 and 1973.

"Through intensive work by the Internal Revenue Service, these audits have now been completed and have resulted in adjustments, as in the past," Rockefeller said.

When he submitted his tax records to the Senate committee and summarized them in a lengthy opening statement Sept. 23, Rockefeller gave no indication the figures were subject to further audit.

The additional taxes include $104,180 in federal income taxes for 1970, a year in which previously he had not paid any federal income tax though he did pay $814,701 in total federal, state and local taxes.

Rockefeller had said he didn't owe federal income taxes that year because of changes in the investments held by the two trusts that provide the bulk of his income. The two trusts paid more than $6 million in capital gains taxes that year, however.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are the principal items covered by Rockefeller's tax summaries, showing changes over the pre-audit figures:

Nab 16 in Yugoslavian plot

ZADAR, Yugoslavia (AP) — Sixteen Croatians have been charged with trying to overthrow the Yugoslav government through assassinations and other terrorist acts and set up an independent Croatian state, crimes that could bring the death penalty, officials said today.

Fifteen members of the group, which includes professors and students, were arrested in June and the 16th is still at large, Public Prosecutor Zdravko Dragic said. The trial will take place next month.

Dragic said they organized an illegal Croatian Liberation

Army, acquired guns and ammunition, planned robberies, fires, mining of industrial and oilitary installations, and the assassination of political leaders.

"Their activities were aimed at toppling the socialist, self-management, federal system of Yugoslavia and threatening its territorial integrity, and secession of Croatia and other territories from Yugoslavia, with creation of an Ustasha state, the way Fascists set up the Ustasha puppet state in the last war—the independent state of Croatia," Dragic said.

White House was blackmailed: Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — John W. Dean III has testified that the hardest part about keeping the Watergate cover-up going was raising enough money to pay off the Watergate burglars.

"The White House was being blackmailed," the former White House counsel said Friday, his third day of testimony at the Watergate cover-up trial.

Prosecutors have said that about $800,000 went to the seven defendants.

In the four months after the break-in, Nixon campaign fundraiser Herbert W. Kalmbach was called on to raise funds.

Dean said that Kalmbach demanded in the fall of 1972 to be relieved from those duties, which were turned over to Nixon on re-election committee official Frederick C. LaRue. LaRue criss-crossed the country seeking potential donors among wealthy Republicans without telling them what the money was to be used for, Dean testified.

Dean testified that when other sources dried up in early 1973, the White House and re-election committee officials in on the cover-up turned to a secret $350,000 fund under the control of defendant H.R. Haldeman.

After initially tapping the fund with Haldeman's reluctant approval for between $40,000 and $70,000, Dean said defendant and former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell came back for more money to make sure that Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt Jr. did not tell the prosecutors all he knew about illegal political espionage.

The frantic and persistent scramble for cash to meet demands from Hunt and convicted conspirator G. Gordon Liddy culminated on March 21, 1973, when Dean told former President Richard M. Nixon that $1 million would be needed to pay off the original defendants.

In the fourth White House tape introduced the jury heard Nixon say of Dean's money estimate, "Well, for Chrissakes get it..."

In the same tape, released in part by the White House and in full transcript form by the House Judiciary Committee, Dean declares, "We have a cancer — within — close to the presidency, that's growing. It's growing daily."

Dean goes on to advise the President that his closest aides are vulnerable to charges of obstruction of justice, the very charge they face in the cover-up trial.

Besides the March 21 tape, the jury Friday heard another tape never before made public.

That tape shows that four days before he said he learned of the involvement of white House aides in Watergate, Nixon was advised by Dean that his closest aides were vulnerable to criminal prosecution.

Ford pays tribute to the free press

ANDERSON, S.C. (AP) — Campaigning in the Carolinas and Kentucky for Republican candidates who can "cut the mustard," President Ford took a breather from politics here today to pay tribute to the nation's free press.

Ford's only nonpolitical appearance of a six-stop tour was to dedicate the 22-month-old headquarters of the Anderson Independent and The Daily Mail. In his prepared text, Ford said: "It is not the function of the press to propagandize for any party, any president, or any section of the public. You call things as you see them."

Differing "with those who categorize the journalist as a different kind of American," he said he looks upon each one as an individual and said, "although I have had a lot of adversaries in my political life, I have no list of enemies. Nor will I ever have."

Ford said he naturally did not enjoy being criticized by the press but asserted, "I would be even more concerned if the press were not free to criticize."

Ford said he would try to continue the pleasant relationship with the press that he enjoyed as vice president and throughout 25 years in Congress, but he added:

"I do not put as much emphasis on public relations as I do on fundamental human relations. We are all disagree without being disagreeable."

Appearing before an airport crowd of several thousand earlier in Greenville, Ford called for the election of Republican senate and house candidates who will "cut red tape, cut the budget and, in effect, cut the mustard."

Appearing with Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., and the state's major GOP vote-seekers, Ford said the men and women he was endorsing were "trying to give you competition" in politics.

In most of his campaign appearances, the President has pointed to polls indicating a dim Republican prospect in the November balloting and called for preservation of the two-party system.

Ford left the Greenville airport via helicopter at 9:51 a.m. en route to Anderson for the second leg of his South Carolina tour.

He was also to visit Rock Hill, S.C., Greensboro, N.C., and Louisville, Ky.

The President left Washington early today for what was to be a 16-hour campaign tour.

He took off from nearby Andrews Air Force base at 7:58 a.m. EDT in Air Force One, the presidential jet.

All the stops except the one at Anderson were avowedly political — a series of rallies and fund-raising events in behalf of Republican candidates. And even the appearance in Anderson, to dedicate the new headquarters building of the community's two long-established daily newspapers, the Anderson Independent and the Daily Mail, was announced originally by the local GOP House candidate, Marshall Parker.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said the Republican National Committee was picking up the tab for the entire trip, including the cost of flying to the newspaper ceremony.

Four of the day's six speeches were aimed at audiences in South Carolina, where Democratic Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn is in a close race for the governorship with Republican State Sen. James B. Edwards.

Ford also was visiting the state to boost the prospects of Charleston teacher Gwen Bush in her underdog challenge to Democratic Sen. Ernest F. Hollings.

Ford was making two speeches in Greenville, one at the Greenville-Spartanburg Airport and one at the Greenville Memorial Auditorium. His Rock Hill appearance was set for a shopping mall.

Ford's North Carolina stop was for a rally at the High Point Winston-Salem Regional Airport in Greensboro.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Existing safeguards prevent former President Richard M. Nixon's tapes from being destroyed before Congress can act to preserve them, White House counsel Philip W. Buchen says.

But Buchen's comment, made in a letter to the House printing subcommittee, was not enough assurance for the panel's chairman, Rep. John Brademas, D-Ind.

Brademas said Friday he had "grave alarm" over what he said was Buchen's failure in the letter to give specific information on the security arrangements under which Nixon's tapes and papers are now being held.

Brademas, whose subcommittee has before it a Senate-passed bill forbidding the destruction of the documents without congressional approval, had sought the information.

Buchen in a letter dated Oct.

16, replied that the tapes and papers would remain under White House control until the special Watergate prosecutor's office agreed to specific arrangements giving it subpoena access to documents for Watergate trial proceedings.

The White House lawyer added that a Sept. 6 agreement between Nixon and the government provides security by requiring that the materials be jointly held by the former President and the General Services Administration.

The papers would be held in joint custody for three years, the tapes for five years.

Earlier this week, Nixon filed a court suit asserting that the Sept. 6 agreement has been violated because he does not exercise equal control over the documents and that they are stored in Washington instead of near his home at San Clemente, Calif.

USSR agrees to ease Jews bars to emigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — In exchange for U.S. credit and trade concessions, the Soviet Union has agreed to remove obstacles to the emigration of Jews and other Russian minorities.

That is the essence of an unusual arrangement announced Friday by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., leader of a congressional bloc that has insisted that human rights is an essential element in relaxation of tensions between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The agreement, signed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger for the Ford administration, is expected to result in final congressional action this year on a far-reaching bill that gives the president broad authority to negotiate international trade agreements.

When the House passed the trade bill last December, it added an amendment, backed by 78 senators, prohibiting the extension of nondiscriminatory trade treatment to the Soviet Union until free emigration of Russian minorities was assured.

Kissinger called that provision unacceptable, said it would result in less emigration and promised to recommend a veto unless the amendment was removed.

In its final form, the Jackson-Kissinger agreement has only one key difference from the provision adopted by the House.

This change gives the Soviet Union 18 months to show its good intentions.

Kissinger and Jackson agreed that the arrangement must result in the emigration of at least 60,000 Soviets per year, compared with the 35,000 allowed to leave last year.

The Senate Finance Committee is still writing its version of the trade bill. Senate passage is expected after Congress ends its recess on Nov. 18.

Will trade bill with Russia aid Jew emigration?

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet dissidents have voiced skepticism about a U.S.-Russian trade bill aimed at easing Jewish emigration to the West. Many claim the Kremlin must still make radical changes in its attitudes on emigration to meet the terms of the accord.

Under the agreement, made public in Washington on Friday but not yet acknowledged by Soviet officials, Jewish emigration will have to more than double its current rate.

In return the way would be cleared for passage of a trade bill giving the Soviet Union most favorite trading status.

So far this year, Jews have been leaving Russia at a rate of about 2,000 a month. This is a considerable drop from the 35,000 who left in 1973, and far below the 60,000 a year "minimum" referred to Friday in Washington.

Asked about the agreement, Alexei Taragonsky, a Jewish militant, said he doubted that the Soviets would be able to meet the 60,000 figure. "If the ordinary Jew is afraid to apply they will not get that number," he declared.

Andrei Sakharov, a leading spokesman for human rights in the Soviet Union, called the agreement "an extremely small step."

For the Soviet regime and for many loyal Russians, the mere fact of someone wanting to leave the country is an insult to the Soviet Union. This attitude, many observers believe, will not change overnight.

Furthermore, the simple first step of disclosing an intention to emigrate may come hard for many Jews for it usually means hardships ranging from becoming social outcasts to losing jobs and apartments and being carted off for questioning.

Despite the caution expressed by Soviet Jews, officials in Israel hailed the agreement as "an invaluable contribution to a humanitarian cause."

Since 1970, between 85,000 and 90,000 Jews have left the Soviet Union, mostly heading for Israel. Jewish militants claim there is a "pool" of 500,000 Jews who want to leave the Soviet Union, but other sources believe the number to be smaller and that emigration pressure may be dropping off.

The emigration accord was outlined in a letter from Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger to Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and made public Friday by Jackson.

It would clear the way for congressional passage of legislation that would permit the granting of nondiscriminatory tariff treatment to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries.

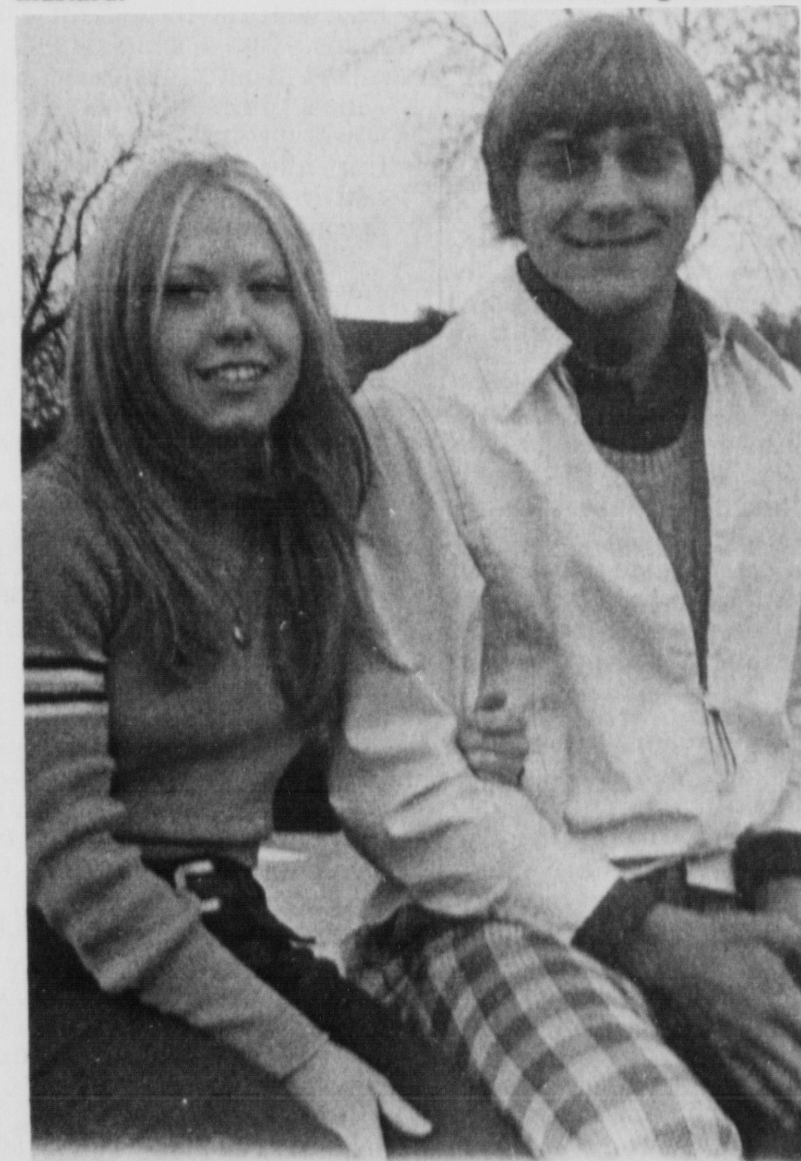

Castro predicts U.S. woes

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Cuban Premier Fidel Castro said Friday night in Havana that the United States faces its worst economic crisis since the 1930s and it might try to extract itself by launching a war, according to the official Cuban news agency Prensa Latina.

"The possibility must not be discarded that imperialism may try to overcome this crisis even by unleashing war," Castro told delegates from more than 60 nations attending the 25th general congress of the World Trade Unions' Federation.

Prensa Latina said Castro blamed the world energy crisis on "the imperialists' policy of squandering the world's natural resources at the expense of the underdeveloped countries..."

Put OSHA out of business

By JOHN F. McMANUS

BELMONT, Mass.—The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) has been operating for three years. Its proponents insist that the working men and women of America are compelled to labor in dangerous and unsanitary places, and that the federal government must force employers to implement whatever measures are dreamed up by OSHA to correct these alleged conditions.

The implied insult to America's businessmen is astounding. According to OSHA, the owners and managers of our nation's industries are too stupid or too callous to give a hoot about the persons who are earning a living for them.

Adding injury to its insulting premise, OSHA has published thousands of edicts for American businesses, all of which have the force of law, and hired a swarm of bureaucrats to insure compliance. Inspections, citations, fines, and harassment quickly become a way of life whenever OSHA's officials arrive on the scene. Some businesses have been forced to close because of inability to meet OSHA's demands. Expansion plans of others have been left on the drawing board in the wake of an OSHA visit. The cost to American businessmen has been staggering.

Still, OSHA's defenders insist that the agency is necessary because thousands of Americans are killed and over two million are injured at work each year. And they trot out the figures appearing in "Accident Facts," the publication of the non-governmental, privately supported National Safety Council, to prove their case.

Like a Missourian who has to be shown, however, we obtained the three most recent issues of "Accident Facts" and carefully checked the statistics given in each. The first "overlooked" item we found was that not only had the number of accidental deaths decreased from 19,000 in 1937 to just over 14,000 in 1971, but that this remarkable decrease in the number of deaths had occurred during a period when the actual work force had doubled. In other words, in the 35 years prior to OSHA, American employers had succeeded in making their places of employment more than twice as safe.

Then, we checked "Accident Facts" for statistics covering 1972 and 1973, the two years since OSHA was established. After all, if OSHA could ever be justified, a noticeable drop in the accidental death rate should appear as a result of its efforts. But the figures show that, despite OSHA's existence, accidental deaths per number of workers have continued to decline at exactly the same rate as before. What the figures do prove is that OSHA has not affected the safety of the American workingman at all.

But OSHA certainly has affected American business. In the typical month of September 1973, for instance, OSHA conducted 6,048 unannounced inspections, handed out 3,688 citations alleging 18,813 violations, and levied fines totalling $477,609. Additional millions of dollars had to be spent for equipment and personnel to satisfy OSHA demands. The continuing slowdown in productivity caused by such harassment has resulted in fewer jobs, shortages of goods, and higher prices.

In summary, we conclude that, if safety and health are the goals, there never has been any need for OSHA. But if the government's purpose is to control, stifle, and ruin America's business community, there is and continues to be a need for OSHA. The strong possibility that this is indeed the government's purpose should not be overlooked.

OSHA never could, and still cannot, be justified. Numerous Congressmen have already introduced or supported legislation to repeal this bureaucratic monster. They are anxious to put OSHA out of business, and they deserve the thanks and the help of all Americans.

Kissinger under siege

WASHINGTON (LENS)—Both at home and abroad Henry Kissinger is coming under increasing criticism. The difficulties he is running into were spotlighted when President Ford judged it necessary to include in his speech at the UN assembly on Sept. 18 an assurance to the world that "the Secretary of State has my full support and the unquestioned backing of the American people." Rarely has any head of government felt obliged to give his own foreign minister such a personal endorsement in an international forum.

Mr. Ford's move followed, and was meant to put an end to, the circulation of lively rumors about his supposed disenchantment with Kissinger. But it did not prevent congressional critics in Washington from renewing their attacks on the Secretary of State; nor did it enable Kissinger, when he in turn addressed the UN assembly on Sept. 30, to get the kind of hero's welcome he had been given there last year.

The distinctive part of Mr. Kissinger's UN speech was his grim warning of the imminent prospect of the proliferation of nuclear arms. He dwelt on the dangers involved in the spreading of plutonium around the world; but he glossed over the recent American decisions to supply plutonium-producing material to Israel and Egypt and to go on supplying it to India, although these countries' nuclear activities are not safeguarded in accordance with the terms of the non-proliferation treaty.

This was just the kind of thing that has led some of Kissinger's domestic critics to accuse him of habitual disingenuousness or even duplicity.

Indeed, criticism is now pounding Kissinger from many sides. American supporters of Israel, both Jewish and gentile, are suspicious that he may still intend to put more pressure on Israel than his American friends would stand for.

His less than impressive performance in the Cyprus crisis has robbed him of his reputation for working diplomatic miracles, and both houses of Congress have now dealt him a sharp rebuff by voting, despite all his pleas, for a suspension of military aid to Turkey.

Moralists who cling to the venerable idea that a country's foreign policy ought to be based on some sort of principle are offended by his tendency to proclaim the merits of hard-nosed realism and even of opportunism. But in his pursuit of détente he has increasingly come under fire not only from those who think him unprincipled but also from such assuredly hardnosed congressional leaders as Sen. Henry Jackson, who fear that Kissinger's eagerness to show quick results may enable the Russians to lead him by the nose into dangerously inequitable trade or arms control deals.

Meanwhile Kissinger has been branded with at least a share of responsibility for another newly exposed and very unhappy affair, the clandestine American campaign to support the opposition to Allende's government in Chile. And here he is being made to appear clumsy and possibly untruthful as well as futile.

Recently he had a heavy day with the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, with its Democratic caucus, and at a briefing session with both houses' party leaders. On the same day the New York Times obtained from "intelligence sources" a detailed allegation that the greater part of the large funds spent in Chile in 1972 and 1973 by the Central Intelligence Agency was used to finance the shopkeepers, taxi drivers and truck drivers whose strikes were disrupting the economy.

Kissinger, however, apparently told the Senate committee and the party leaders that the CIA's only role in Chile had been to sustain the opposition press and parties—which did indeed keep going throughout the Allende years; they have been suppressed only since the armed forces killed the president and took over.

Kissinger's version has found little credence, partly because it is hardly compatible with the disclaimers about CIA involvement in Chile that he gave last year.

Those members of Congress who are entitled to be informed about clandestine actions of this kind are now complaining that they were deliberately misled; and other critics are pointing out that the biggest flaw in the philosophy of undiluted Realpolitik is that each damning revelation about covert operations opens up a new credibility gap. Kissinger might, for instance, be less bothered now by allegations about American responsibility for setting off the Cyprus crisis if there was less evidence of American responsibility for financing the opposition to Allende in Chile.

Strikes: world-wide epidemics

LONDON (LENS)—Strikes and shop-floor militancy are on the up all over the world. Days lost in the 46 countries that submit regular returns to the International Labor Organization in Geneva have more than doubled from an annual average of 68 million in the five years 1963-67 to 126 million in 1968-72.

Last year seems to have been particularly fractious almost everywhere except Britain, although the full returns are not yet in. This year has so far produced a coal strike in Britain, a rail strike in India, general strikes in Italy and Japan, a doubling of strikes in America and a five-fold rise in days lost in Australia.

The increase in days lost does not always mean more strikes. There were actually fewer strikes in 1970-71 than in 1962-63 (57,200 compared with 59,500), but they were bigger and lasted longer.

The proportion of strikes caused by wage disputes has risen steadily and now averages 60 per cent of the industrial action in most countries.

No one has satisfactorily explained this worldwide tendency to lay down the tools, but here are some possible reasons.

Bigger unions: Membership has grown in most countries over the past decade, usually by about 10 per cent. This is partly because the world's organized labor force is growing and partly because inflation drives more workers into unions. Higher membership makes it easier both to call strikes and to keep them going longer. Membership has been helped by the spread of manufacturing industry and the decline of agriculture, as well as by the spread of education.

Still, there is little relation between days lost through strikes and the proportion of the labor force belonging to unions. There are few strikes in highly unionized Sweden and lots in under-unionized Italy.

More powerful unions: Strikes are now more damaging because industries are increasingly interdependent. If one is stopped, others can soon be brought to a stop too. The growth in international trade has meant more competition, so a company that is strikebound may lose its customers forever.

These factors are not new: they do not satisfactorily explain the sudden intensification of strikes in the past decade. Even if strikes became more damaging it need not have followed that they would last longer or be more frequent. Employers might simply have caved in earlier.

Lower unemployment: Those countries whose policies rely on more unemployment slowing wage inflation down may also believe that it would reduce strikes. There may have been such a link between unemployment and strikes in the past, but it may have vanished in recent years. A record number of days were lost in 1972 in Britain, which was a year that began with one million unemployed.

In America, fewer days were lost during the last boom than during the last recession. There could even be a tendency now for unemployment to be associated with more severe strikes.

Higher profits: Unions are normally more inclined to strike when companies appear to have more cash. As the ratio of profits to wages has declined in most countries over the past decade, this is not a particularly sophisticated explanation.

Reds under the bed: Political factors have been important in some countries. Some unions struck in Britain from 1970 onwards to protest against the Industrial Relations Act and other Tory policies. Unions in Italy are always on strike to complain about what the government is or is not doing. But most countries do not include political strikes in their ILO returns.

Incomes policies: It is popular misconception that wage controls produce more strikes. The reverse is usually true. Days lost in Britain through strikes dropped 70 per cent between 1972 and 1973 when a statutory incomes policy was introduced.

The introduction of President Nixon's incomes policy in America in 1971 helped to cut days lost by 28 per cent between 1970 and 1971 and another 43 per cent between 1971 and 1972. Since controls came off in the spring, days lost have soared. More were lost in June than in any month since 1971, and there have been twice as many strikes in the first half of this year as last.

Incomes policies may reduce strikes initially because employers are forbidden by law to pay more than a fixed amount, so it becomes pointless to strike except when a union is powerful enough to beat a government, as Britain's miners correctly guessed last February. Incomes policies also reduce inflation, at least initially, which removes some of the sting.

Inflation: With one or two exceptions, countries having increasing trouble with their unions are also those having increasing trouble in controlling inflation and a good many of them have trouble in maintaining employment too.

Some will argue that it is union militancy that causes inflation; others that the unions are usually acting defensively. The more likely probability is that strikes and inflation feed on each other.

When prices zoom, workers feel poorer even when their wages are keeping pace with prices. The value of real wages rose 6.4 per cent in Britain in 1972, but opinion polls showed most people feeling that they were worse off and more working days were lost through strikes in that year than in any since the war.

Inflation focuses attention on relative rates of pay, which leads to bitterness, inter-union jealousy and more strikes. It also makes the traditionally moderate white-collar workers readier both to join unions and to strike.

Doctors and judges have joined Italian strikes this year. Public service workers in America and Japan now have little or no compunction in striking although it is illegal for them to do so in both countries. Local government officers, nurses and civil servants have all joined strikes in Britain in recent months.

The government that cures inflation could find that it has cured most of its strikes; if it can correct stagflation, it will at least ameliorate them.

Berry's World

"After that Pan Am pilot tried to talk to Senator Proxmire while he was jogging, a lot of other lobbyists got the same idea!"

EEC jobless soars

BRUSSELS (LENS)—Half a million more people are out of work in the Common Market this year than last, and most of them are Germans. But unemployment is not talked about much in the EEC. The Nine's German-led chorus harps instead on inflation rates, ranging from mid-teen highs in Britain, Italy and Ireland to around a 7 per cent low in Germany.

Dr. Patrick Hillery, the EEC social affairs commissioner, has now tried to correct this. Seizing on a short question on unemployment from Alfred Bertrand, a Belgian member of the Christian Democrat group in the European parliament, he has published a long answer detailing unemployment rates in the Nine.

Jobless rates have risen everywhere in the EEC except Italy, and, as Dr. Hillery said: "The prospects of recovery in employment over the next six to twelve months are not good."

As it is the EEC unemployment figures would be worse if Germany, France, Belgium and Denmark had not pulled the welcome mat from under their "guest worker." Holland, too, is now becoming less liberal towards newcomers. The Dutch government is making it harder for settlers from the former Dutch colony of Surinam to enter Holland. These are classic beggar-thy-neighbor moves.

Portugal, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Spain each have about 500,000 of their people working in the Common Market. They will not be able to find jobs for many of them if they return home.

The commission's latest economic forecasts for 1975, too, point to a further rise in unemployment in the EEC next year, although the commission is very shy about admitting that a greater number of Europeans will find themselves out of work.

Yet at the recent Washington meeting of the big five—the United States, Britain, France, Germany and Japan—the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, Denis Healey, found himself alone in arguing for deflation to cut the risk of a world recession. Indeed, the French finance minister, Jean-Pierre Fourcade, is said to have rudely interjected that since the other finance ministers there had no votes in Healey's constituency of Leeds East, they should get on to talk about something else.

This is bad for jobs when the International Monetary Fund has become gloomier than before and is now forecasting hardly any growth in industrialized countries in the last half of this year and the first half of next.

No change of mind in Brussels is likely soon, not least because a late frost has spoiled American soybeans and led to predictions of a 23 per cent smaller harvest this year than last. That points to dearer foodstuffs for European farm animals and eventually higher prices in European butcher shops.

All this goes to reinforce the conviction of the commission that the fight against inflation "must once more be considered the priority objective of community policy" and that a slowdown in the upsurge of prices "is essential if a profound disruption of economic and social life is to be avoided."

But in saying this in its latest report on the EEC economy the commission is diffident about spelling out the cost in fewer jobs. It has no wish to provoke headlines throughout the Nine about the commission demanding higher unemployment.

Maternity homes face changing scene

A sign of our changing morals and mores is the rapid rate at which maternity homes, most of them founded many decades ago, have been closing their doors in recent years.

A group of researchers from the University of California has made a study of the phenomenon. Their findings, based on responses from 163 of the 201 known maternity homes in the United States in 1972, were reported in a recent issue of the American Journal of Public Health.

Less than five per cent of women bearing out-of-wedlock children received aid from a maternity home, the study notes. The majority of homes were small, having fewer than 40 beds. Yet in spite of their small size, most homes did not have a waiting list and few had more than 80 per cent occupancy.

The statistics also show that of 26 maternity homes closed since 1967, well over half—61 per cent—closed since 1971.

According to the authors of the report, changing moral values and greater social acceptance of unwed mothers have significantly reduced the role of the traditional maternity home. They also note that effective family planning programs, the availability of abortions and expanded community services for pregnant teen-agers have contributed to the downward trend.

They don't recommend that the maternity home be phased out as an obsolete institution of society, however. There are many unmet needs for youths that the homes could provide.

"Pregnancy is only one of the problems facing today's troubled adolescent," the report states.

Some of the suggested services include drug abuse prevention, abortion counseling, family life and sex education and contraceptive help. The study also recommends that the homes provide pregnancy testing, venereal disease services, group therapy, family guidance and individual counseling.

And when a pregnant adolescent is involved, the authors feel the homes could offer psychiatric and psychological services, as well as long-term care and perhaps day care or foster home replacement services.

In sum, maternity homes will have to revamp their images and branch out into expanded services if they want to continue to be places to which today's troubled teen-agers can turn for help.

Miss O'Brien weds Keith L. Shaw

MR. AND MRS. KEITH L. SHAW

Arrangements of blue and white daisies, roses and baby's breath decorated the altar of St. Patrick's Catholic Church for the recent marriage of Miss Mary Jane O'Brien, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James O'Brien, Franklin Grove, to Keith L. Shaw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Shaw, rural Amboy.

The Rev. James O. Molloy, pastor of the church, was the officiating clergyman, and the soloist, James Wiltz, was accompanied by Stanley Smith, organist.

Bridal Gown

For her wedding, the bride was attired in a Victorian gown of white polyester, which she designed and made. The gown's floor-length skirt, accented by a hemline ruffle, was topped by a molded bodice featuring shoulder ruffles and sheer sleeves ending in ruffled cuffs. A pearl-trimmed Juliet bonnet held her three-tiered chapel veil of illusion edged with iridescent lace, which was made by the bride's sister, Mrs. Joseph Terry, Mt. Morris, and as she approached the altar with her father, she carried three long-stemmed yellow roses tied with white satin ribbons.

The maid of honor, Miss Martha Kant, Amboy, wore a full-length gown of Peacock-blue polyester styled with a high neckline and puffed sleeves, and the necklace she wore was a gift from the bride.

Identically-styled gowns of pastel-blue polyester were worn by the bridesmaid, Miss Kris Shaw, Amboy, sister of the bridegroom, and the bride's sister, Miss Diane O'Brien, who served as junior bridesmaid. Their earrings were gifts from the bride, and each attendant carried a single yellow rose.

Frank Selmi, Rock Falls, attended Mr. Shaw as best man; acting as groomsman was Kevin Shaw, Amboy, brother of the bridegroom, and ushers for the ceremony were George Hume, Marengo, and Gregg Shaw, Amboy, also a brother of the bridegroom.

Preceding their departure on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Canada, the newlyweds were honored at a reception in the Dixon Elks Club when decorations were in blue and green, chosen colors of the bride. The refreshment table, covered with a white linen cloth and netting, was edged with boxwood garlands, and held a seven-tiered cake decorated with blue flowers and topped by a wedding ornament. A wreath of blue flowers and foliage encircled the base of the cake, which was prepared by Mrs. Raymond Levan, aunt of the bride, who also catered the reception.

Mrs. Jack Gibbons and Mrs. Leroy Payne, Dixon, aunts of the bride, served the cake, and the bride's sisters, Miss Janet O'Brien and Miss Patricia O'Brien, presided at the coffee service and punch bowl. Gifts for the couple were displayed by Mrs. Joseph Terry, Mt. Morris; Mrs. Alan Coffman, Polo, and Miss Karen O'Brien, Franklin Grove, sisters of the bride, and another sister, Miss Jackie O'Brien, registered the guests.

The reception was followed by a dance when music was provided by Larry Newcomer and the Misfits, and the bridegroom's parents hosted a wedding rehearsal dinner at the Brown Shingle Restaurant.

Parties

Pre-nuptial parties honoring the bride included a kitchen shower given by her aunt, Mrs. Robert Theiss, Sublette, and a personal shower was arranged by her maid of honor, Miss Kant. She was also guest of honor at a miscellaneous shower planned by her sisters, Mrs. Coffman and Mrs. Terry.

The new Mrs. Shaw, a 1971 graduate of Franklin Center High School, Franklin Grove, graduated this year from the Freeport Memorial Hospital School of Nursing, Freeport, and she is a present employee of City Hospital in Hinesville, Ga., where they are residing at 310 Welborn St.

Mr. Shaw, a graduate of Franklin Center High School and Sauk Valley College, is stationed with the Army at Fort Steward, Ga.

Dear Ann

by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Can you stand one more open letter on being fat?

Dear Everyone: I am heavy and I know it. Don't tell me. All you do is remind me of something I'm trying to deal with. You have no way of knowing how I feel because I hide my hurt behind humor. (Fat people are so jolly!) But I'm really sensitive about my weight and doing everything I can, including therapy, to find out why I eat so much.

Part of it is the tremendous anger at people like you for not accepting me as I am. I swallow that anger every time I put food in my mouth. And another thing—I don't understand why you think you have the right to tell me how I should look. If I told you you needed a nose job, wouldn't you feel hurt?

So, please stop offering me $5 for every pound I lose, or a trip to Europe if I lose a ton. And don't tell me how pretty my face is. Thanks—Living In Fat City And Trying Like Hell To Move

Dear Trying: If you really want to move, you will. There are no permanent leases in Fat City, only long-time rentals for those who have neither the desire nor the determination to live in a healthier and happier neighborhood. Good luck. I'm sure you'll make it.

Dear Ann Landers: I've asked several people in the medical field about those new shots to lose weight. (They contain the urine from pregnant women.) All I get are vague answers.

Some of my friends are taking them once a week at $15 a pop, and they are losing weight. I'm disturbed because only two doctors in this area will give the shots, yet my sister is taking her teen-age daughters to get them.

The shot enthusiasts are the same people who go to spas, "fat farms," seek out the fat diets, and have taken pills (until they got gooped up and had to quit). In each case they put all the weight back on.

When I ask why only two doctors give the shots, they answer I get it. "The medication is in short supply." What about this, Ann?—Interested And Worried

Dear I and W: The shots you are describing are called human chorionic gonadotropin injections. The reason so few doctors will give them is because they have not been approved by the Food and Drug Administration.

There is no valid evidence that these shots have any effect, except psychological. If there is a weight loss it's from the 500-calorie-a-day diet that is supposed to be part of the program. I've said this so many times I'm beginning to sound like a broken record, but I'll say it again—The only sensible way to lose weight and KEEP it off is to go on a diet (under a doctor's supervision), exercise regularly (I walk, walk, walk), or join a "Group" if you need emotional support and can't do it alone.

Dear Ann Landers: The poem you printed in your Sept. 9 column entitled "Heaven's Very Special Child" appeared in a book compiled by my husband, the Rev. John A. Massimilla and myself, entitled "This Is Our Life." The book is available for $1 and was written out of concern for mentally retarded children and their parents. Our mailing address is P.O. Box 256, Magnolia, Del. 19962. Will you please so inform your readers? Thank you.—Edna Massimilla

Dear Edna: Glad to set the record straight. Thank you for writing.

Molded salad is decorative

A pretty molded salad will add a decorative note to any table. Gently fold drained canned cling peach slices, halved fresh strawberries and cubes of cream cheese into strawberry gelatin. Let gelatin partially set before adding fruits and cheese. Spoon into decorative molds and chill until firm. Add a few drops mint extract to mayonnaise for the dressing and top each salad with mint sprig.

Attention! Prospective brides

Because of misunderstanding on wedding pictures, The Telegraph is asking prospective brides to arrange for good black-and-white wedding pictures for use with wedding stories.

Color photographs and black-and-white prints off a color negative are unsatisfactory for good newspaper reproduction. Rather than be disappointed by having a picture rejected by the newspaper, we are advising brides to insist on a black-and-white picture shot with black-and-white film.

Trump coup reveals real expert

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When your doubleton king is hopelessly trapped in front of dummy's ace-queen, there is no real reason not to produce the king on the first lead of the suit. Sometimes this second-hand-high play, which is actually a falsecard play, may cause declarer to go wrong.

West opens the king of hearts against South's four-spade contract. East plays the deuce and South lets West hold that trick. West shifts to the ace of diamonds and continues with the queen, after East follows to the first diamond with the eight spot.

A really expert South would lead a spade to dummy's ace and a second spade back to his queen. West would show out, but expert South would cash his ace of hearts, lead a club, finesse the queen if necessary, ruff a heart, lead a second club to dummy, ruff a club, lead his last diamond, putting West on lead, and overruff East on the next-to-last trick.

A slightly less expert South would not see that play. He would lead the club right away and finesse dummy's queen. Then he would count West for 10 red cards, two clubs and one spade. It would be a simple matter to take a second-round trump finesse against East.

But, suppose West played the king of clubs on the first club lead. Now South would play West for two spades and one club. He would play the ace and then the king of spades and wind up down one since the trump coup could not be developed at that stage.

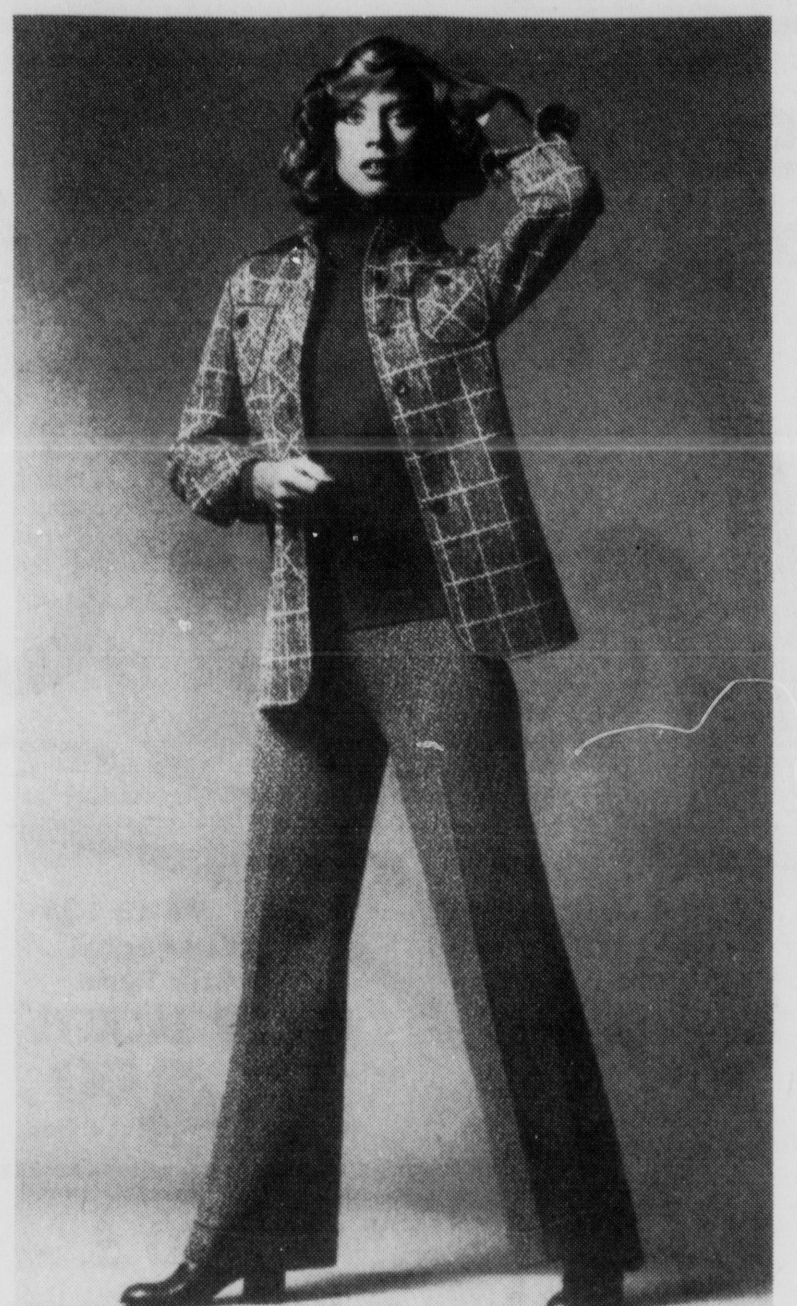

MULTI-COLORED

There's an attractive small purse with wooden handles out now that comes with a bonus, changeable covers. You can change its color and pattern at will with the covers to match any outfit.

CLEAN HAIR

Always rinse salt or chlorinated water out of your hair after swimming. The chemicals in these substances can dry out hair and the scalp.

AMANDA PANDA

PUT-TOGETHERS for fall and winter have softness plus sophistication. Plaid and tweed shirt jacket teams with lean-line tweed cuffed pants and ribbed, long-sleeved turtleneck sweater for a look that's terrific.

New coats offer variety

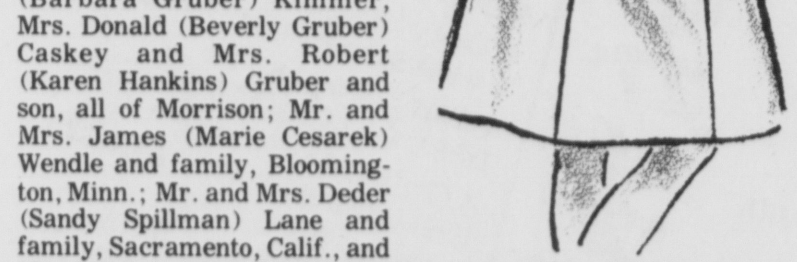

The one item that most women will purchase this winter is a new wool coat. For the first time in several years The Coat, the real coat, the wool coat is back as a fashion item. In past seasons the emphasis was on pants, blazers, heavy sweaters and jackets. With the renewed interest in skirts, longer lengths and the move away from close-fitting styles, a roomier, fuller coat or even cape is called for.

There's a new excitement in coats with fashion details like controlled back with full front, squared armholes, piping and seaming as part of the design. Capes are full, with or without hoods and can button, tie or even zip. There's also a short topper look that's far removed from the blazer we've known and loved in the past. It's cut fuller, especially through the shoulders and sleeves and often wraps or ties.

Many coats and capes this year are "unconstructed." This means there are no linings, interlinings or padding thus giving a soft, swinging look and making it a lot easier to put on over a skirt and sweater or a suit with a jacket.

Since pure wool is warm yet light in weight, it's a natural for the new coat shapes for fall and winter. Wool is the original easy-care fiber. Wrinkle resistance, color-fastness, shape-recovery and water-repellency are qualities inherent to wool.

Polly's Pointers

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — Thank you so much for the help you give us with our problems. Now I would appreciate knowing how to remove a smudge from my lovely drum top table. I spilled nail polish on its highly polished and waxed surface, immediately wiped it off with tissue and sponged it with cold water but was left with a smudge. How can I remove it and restore the original luster to the table top? — MRS. L. K.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with men's work boots that have only a thin piece of material covering the steel in the toes. When that cloth wears away socks rub the steel and continually make holes which mean constant darning. — PAT.

DEAR POLLY — Like Mrs. C. B. S. I was once an unimportant cash customer in stores where I shopped all the time. I had to establish credit EVERY time I made a big purchase that I planned to pay for in 60 or 90 days. I finally got smart and established charge accounts at the big stores that offer them. Now I buy what I need and charge it. When the bill comes I pay in full (to avoid finance charges) so I am still a cash customer in my own mind plus a valued charge customer and my credit rating is excellent. Of course, this can only work if you keep in mind that you are going to pay in full when the bill comes and are careful not to over-spend just because you have a charge card. It also keeps all but pin money in a checking account and one writes as few checks as possible. — MRS. F. A. L.

DEAR POLLY — Our children put their stereo equipment in an area in the recreation room that the former owners had used as a closet and they wanted a bead curtain to cover the opening. After pricing beads they found their budgets could not stand the cost so they collected small medicine vials from everyone they knew and drilled a hole in the bottom of each one. The plastic vials were then painted, left clear or had designs put on them. Salvaged yarn was then strung through each vial and knots made along the length to hold them in place. These turned out to be very charming "bead" curtains as the vials were carefully alternated according to sizes and lengths and staggered on the various lengths of yarn. — MARY ANN.

GERALD LIGHTNER

After a long career in the Air Force, Gerald W. "Jerry" Lightner has returned to Dixon where he resides with his wife, Julia, and their youngest son, Gerald Jr. Jerry and Julia have five other children; one son resides in Andros Island, Bahamas, another in Provo, Utah; two sons in Satellite Beach, Fla., and their only daughter, now Mrs. Debra Eichelberger, resides with her husband in Sanford, Fla.

Lightner enlisted in the Army Air Corps shortly after graduating from Dixon High School in 1941. He completed Airplane Mechanic School and shortly thereafter began flight training as a pilot, earning his wings in October, 1942, at the age of 18. During an Air Force check of records years later, it was determined that Jerry held the title "Youngest Air Force Pilot." He was also the youngest to be awarded Command Pilot wings, the Air Forces' highest aeronautical rating.

During WW II Jerry delivered new aircraft from factories to operating units and served a tour of duty in the China-Burma-India Theatre of Operations. He later returned to Dixon but the call of the wild blue yonder was too great and he returned to the Air Force.

After various assignments and additional heavy bombardment training, Jerry went to Alexandria in 1952, where the first Aerial Refueling Squadron under Tactical Air Command was being organized. It was from here Lightner occasionally gave Dixon an abbreviated air show.

In 1955 Jerry accompanied the Aerial Refueling Squadron to RAF Station Sculthorpe, Norfolk, England. It was here his daughter and youngest son were born. During this tour, Jerry was an aircraft commander, instrument check pilot, maintenance test pilot, instructor, and chief of the pilot standardization and evaluation board. It was while in England that he decided to try for a Regular Air Force Commission. As a reservist, the possibility of being taken off active duty was a continual threat. He applied for and was awarded a commission in the Regular Air Force. Although it cost him years of promotion eligibility, he considered it a fair price for the assurance of remaining in the Air Force as a career officer.

Returning to the States in 1958, he was assigned to Langley Air Force Base, Va. In addition to his flying duties (and occasional flights over Dixon) his duties included Disaster Control Officer, instructor in the KB-50 Simulator, Chief of Instrument Training Section, and Director of Flying Safety.

In 1963 Jerry was assigned to Vietnam as an advisor to General Nguyen Cao-Ky and the Vietnamese Air Force. In addition to advising on flying safety and aerial operations, he participated almost daily in resupply missions, paratroop drops, and night flare missions. During night flare missions, he responded to emergency calls for help from hamlets or forts under attack by the Viet Cong. Flying the faithful Gooney Bird (C-47), Jerry and a crew of Vietnamese would fly to the target area and drop flares of a million candlepower each. With the are well lighted and being a very nice target himself, he would direct bomber and fighter aircraft to the Viet Cong enemy units. He was one of the group of Americans known as the "Dirty Thirty." Like the Lafayette Escadrille and Flying Tigers, the Dirty Thirty were a group of American pilots flying for a foreign government. He was officially appointed a Master Pilot in the Vietnamese Air Force. The story of the Dirty Thirty is told at the Air Force Museum at Wright Patterson AFB, Ohio.

Returning again to the States in 1964, he was assigned to the space program at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla. Appointed as Director, Range Instrumentation Ships Division, he was responsible for the operation, modification, and scheduling of eight heavily instrumented ships used to gather radar and telemetry data on both domestic and foreign missiles. Since this operation expended vast sums of money, Jerry was required to present formal briefings to the Department of Defense, Bureau of the Budget, and Defense Intelligence Agency on costs and utilization. One modification program alone amounted to over $400 million. He was later assigned as Plans Officer for the Air Force Eastern Test Range. In this capacity he was responsible for the preparation, coordination, and implementation guidance for all war, contingency, and disaster planning for stations and bases extending from Cape Kennedy through South Africa.

In June 1971 Jerry retired at Patrick AFB, Fla., with 30 years of service. He holds some 25 awards and decorations.

Marine Sgt. Chester T. Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Williams, Rt. 3, Oregon, graduated from Non-Commissioned Officers Leadership School at the Marine Corps Base, Cherry Point, N.C.

His studies were designed to enhance his leadership ability and included close order drill, Marine Corps history and tradition, military courtesy, administrative procedures and participation in physical fitness training.

He is a former student of Rock Valley Junior College, Rockford.

Marine Lance Corporal Rick E. Webb, husband of the former Miss Marie L. Wedekind of 1018 W. Sixth St., Dixon, was meritoriously promoted to his present rank at the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point, N.C.

A meritorious promotion is awarded only to those Marines who have distinguished themselves through work, military bearing and leadership.

A 1973 graduate of Franklin Center High School, Franklin Grove, he joined the Marine Corps in August 1973.

Marine PFC. Loyd E. East Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Loyd E. East Sr., Rt. 2, Amboy, graduated from recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego.

Physical conditioning, discipline and teamwork are emphasized during Marine recruit training. Classes include instruction in close order drill, Marine Corps history, first aid, uniform regulations and military customs and courtesies.

CROP Walk for hunger

CROP gifts help people help themselves through food for work projects. Workers receive payment in food for work to improve community facilities such as schools, community centers, roads, bridges, and water systems.

The purpose of the Lee County Hunger Walk Sunday is to assist such self-help programs sponsored by CROP and other church-related relief agencies.

Youth and adults from Lee County churches, schools, 4-H Clubs and other organizations will walk to the Lee County 4-H Center from the Amboy depot parking lot, the Franklin Grove Church of the Brethren and the National Food Store parking lot in Dixon.

Hunger walkers need sponsors who will pledge their gifts to CROP (or designated church relief agencies) on the basis of miles walked. For additional information contact the Rev. Tom W. Shepherd, 288-1222 or Matthew Rhodes, 288-2419. Other downtown churches in Dixon also have information.

Auction for Bicentennial history book

Sunday beginning at noon, the Ogle County Historical Society will be sponsoring an auction. The purpose of this auction, which will be held at the Ogle County Fairgrounds, is to raise money to defray the costs of printing a book which will bring the history of our county up to date to the Bicentennial Year of 1976.

All merchants and citizens of Ogle County are being asked to cooperate in making this event a success.

The society is requesting donations of merchandise for this auction. Any "white elephants" will be greatly appreciated. For those who have service-oriented operations, gift certificates indicating a service to be donated may be given. Anything and everything will be accepted, except items of clothing.

Detection tips offered for breast cancer

NEW YORK (AP) — Happy Rockefeller detected her own breast cancer at an early stage, apparently before any spread to the lymph nodes.

Doctors recommend that breast self-examination or self-palpation should be practiced once a month.

The following instruction on self-palpation accompany the numbered sketches with this article:

1. Sit before a mirror with your back straight, arms relaxed at your sides. Study your breasts in the mirror for changes in size or shape. Look for puckering or dimpling of the skin or discharge or change in the nipples.
2. Raise your arms high above your head and look again for the same signs. Look for any changes since your last examination.
3. Bring your hands to chin level. Place the heels of your hands together and press to make your chest muscles contract. Look for dimpling of the skin.
4. Raise the left arm over your head and rest it on the bed. Keep the fingers of your right hand together and straight. Use a gentle patting motion, feeling with the flat part of your fingers throughout the examination.
5. Start at your breast bone and press carefully on the inner, upper quarter of your breast, moving toward the nipple. Still using the flat of your fingers, feel the area around the nipple.
6. Next feel the lower, inner part of the breast. You will find, among this lower, inner section, a ridge of firm tissue or flesh. This is normal.
7. Now, bring your left arm down to your side. With your right hand, with the flat of the fingers, feel under your armpit.

College graduate turns to migrant camp for peace

MIAMI (AP) — Two years ago, Bob Arbeitman gripped the bachelor's degree in psychology awarded him at Bradley University and began a career which brings him travel, peace and all the fruit he can eat. He's a migrant worker.

Arbeitman, 25, says field labor is a "hassle-free" way of life, more peaceful than construction work, which he says he discarded as a career because of the pressure.

"Everybody in the fields talks about what they're going to do next year, about the little business they're going to buy, about how they're going to give up picking," he says. "But they come back every year. That's part of the fun of it. They like to make plans."

"All the things you read about their poor living conditions are true, but it doesn't seem that bad to them," he said.

Debate calf killing... Veal meat to Hondurans

CUBA CITY, Wis. (AP) — Federal officials set the wheels in motion Friday for shipment to Honduras hurricane victims of meat from 1,000 calves, which National Farmers Organization members in Wisconsin had threatened to kill and bury in a protest against low prices.

Arrangements were ordered made for the shipment after the farmers told President Ford they would stage another demonstration such as the one Tuesday in which more than 600 calves were slaughtered and tossed into pits unless the aid was provided. Officials of the Dubuque, Iowa, Packing Co. had agreed to process the animals.

The ultimatum was issued by James Runde of Cuba City, a Wisconsin NFO official, after Ford criticized the NFO protest.

Runde said he was contacted Friday afternoon by a federal official who coordinates foreign relief shipments and told that arrangements would be made with the packing firm.

Robert Wahlert, executive vice president of the Iowa firm, said someone from the U.S. State Department told him that agency would handle shipment of the slaughtered calves by truck to Miami, Fla., where they would be placed aboard a ship for Honduras.

Runde said that now that Ford has arranged for transportation of the food he could do something else for the farmers.

"I think now he can do us a favor by getting the consumer off our backs," he said.

"Washington is giving the public the impression that the prices farmers charge for their products are responsible for the high cost of living. He's (Ford's) all wet. It's the stuff we (farmers) buy that's causing inflation."

Runde said the NFO didn't "have any brass bands playing" when its members slaughtered calves this week.

"Let's set the record straight," he said. "Over half of those farmers at Curtiss had tears in their eyes while they were killing those calves."

"It's a shame when you take inventory at the end of the year and find cattle are worth less than they were the year before."

By The Associated Press

The White House has told the Agriculture Department to see that the meat of 1,000 Wisconsin calves is sent to the victims of Hurricane Fifi in Honduras, rather than to allow the farmers to kill and bury the cattle in protest over low prices.

Agriculture officials said Friday that the White House ordered the department to assist the farmers who want to donate the meat. A spokesman for the Agency for International Development said the agency would handle shipment.

Last Tuesday, members of the National Farm Organization slaughtered and buried 636 calves in south-central Wisconsin in a price protest demonstration. The action has been criticized by cattlemen's groups.

"Responsible beef cattlemen are taking action today to sustain the cattle industry, not kill it," said Charlie T. Lee, president of the New Mexico Cattle Growers Association.

He said kill-killing farmers are giving the cattle industry a bad name and criticized the "group of people who ... have relied on the federal government to wipe their noses and keep their houses in order."

Harold B. Steele, president of the Illinois Farm Bureau, said, "As a livestock farmer myself, I cannot accept such a heartless means of calling attention to the current financial crisis faced by livestock producers in this country."

The board of directors of the American National Cattlemen's Association said positive steps should be taken to help correct the supply situation and the cost-price imbalance.

"We recognize the right of producers to dispose of their own cattle," said association president Gordon Van Vleck. "However, we deplore the killing of cattle as a dramatization of the current crisis in the cattle industry."

A Brazilian newspaper called the Wisconsin slaughter uncivilized.

"There could be no better illustration to demonstrate how man can at times lose the veneer of his rationality to reveal the brute matter he carries just below his skin," O Globo wrote.

Jim Runde, treasurer of the Wisconsin NFO and the man who organized the plan to donate calves to Honduras rather than kill and bury them, said Friday:

"Let's set the record straight. Over half of those farmers at Curtiss had tears in their eyes while they were killing those calves. It's a shame when you take inventory at the end of the year and find cattle are worth less than they were the year before."

Food sanitation taught at Sauk Valley College

Thirty-seven restaurant owners and operators from the Sauk Valley College area are enrolled in a two-credit hour course at Sauk Valley College to study the importance of food service sanitation.

The State Board of Health is encouraging all persons who work with public food handling to enroll in this class for the safety of their patrons, according to Jim Barber, community services coordinator at SVC. He said a resolution has been introduced to the state board which will, if enacted, require a member of the staff of all restaurants to have taken this course.

Students are studying the problem of safe food, the process of safe food preparation and service, the responsibility of food handlers, cleaning and sanitizing, pest control, employee training and the "self inspection program." Instructors are registered dietitians, Joyce Miller and Wendy Marks, who bring a wealth of background material and practical suggestions to all enrollees.

Persons who complete the course will receive certification from the National Institute for Food Service Handlers, Sauk Valley College and the health department from the county in which they reside. Total cooperation has been extended from both the Lee and Whiteside County health departments. The directors, Dr. J. Sabaitis (Whiteside) and Dr. E. S. Parmenter (Lee), were instrumental in gaining cooperation from the state of Illinois in designing the course which combines both the theory and practice of sanitation principles. Barber said the course is a model food sanitation class in the state.

A second section of this class will begin after the first of the year. Inquiries regarding the second offering should be directed to the Office of Community Services, Sauk Valley College, 288-5511 (Ext. 212).

Starvation stalks Ethiopia

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — Nearly a million of Ethiopia's 24 million people are near starvation and 96 persons have died of thirst in the last two months, according to the Ethiopian News Agency.

The agency said Friday bones of cattle and other animals litter the the Ogaden plateau in eastern Ethiopia's Haraghe Province, and vultures and hyenas were picking over carcasses.

Haraghe Province officials said that there were critical water shortages in 12 of the 13 districts in the province and that emergency water supplies were urgently needed.

Owners of wells and water-holes are charging the price of a goat for a barrel of water in Degeh Bur district bordering neighboring Somalia. A bucket of water was reportedly selling for 2½ cents.

"Even if the rain came shortly, the farmers do not have seed for they have eaten it for want of other food," Haile M.W. Kidan, Haraghe provincial administrators, said.

Kidan said the region has seen no more than a week of rainfall in any of the last four years.

The ousted regime of Emperor Haile Selassie had been accused of hiding the famine situation in the country for three years while close to a quarter-million people died. The new military regime has been trying to reverse that policy and fully publicize the disaster.

Fitness topic for Rotarians

David E. Williams, director of research for the Physical Fitness Institute of America, will demonstrate a method of exercise aimed at bringing businessmen into good physical condition through its use for as little as six to ten minutes a day when he addresses Dixon Rotarians on Monday.

This revolutionary concept of exercise was used to condition our Apollo astronauts and more recently has been credited with helping the National Hockey League's Philadelphia Flyers capture the Stanley Cup.

Williams has earned letters in football, basketball, golf and baseball. He has also coached football, basketball and track at the high school level. During 1973-74 he coached the North-west Suburban Girls Track Club in Chicago and the national champion 15-16 year olds, including the Illinois High School Association national girls record holder in the quarter mile.

Williams served as a rifleman and medic in Vietnam where he earned the Purple Heart, Air Medal, Arm Commendation Medal for Service, and the Bronze Star.

He is currently assistant track and cross-country coach at Northern Illinois University and assists in the NIU Research Laboratory in addition to his responsibilities with the Physical Fitness Institute of America.

Eagles are 5-1 after 19-0 victory

DURAND — The Franklin Center Eagles scored a touchdown in three different quarters to defeat Durand 19-0, here, in an Upstate Illinois football game Friday night. The victory gives the Eagles a 5-1 conference and 5-2 overall mark.

Franklin Center head varsity football coach Ken Neahring credited the Eagle defense for keeping his team in the game citing, "we played most of the first half in our territory. We stopped them inside our 20 and they missed a field goal, we held on fourth and goal and stopped them on a first and goal from the five."

The Eagles did not have good field position in the half until quarterback Scott Delhotal hit end Doug Hayden with a 45-yard pass. Delhotal then scampered 43 yards on a broken pass play to notch the first touchdown.

Jim Roop made it 12-0 in the third quarter with a run of seven yards before Joe Burke tallied on a 23-yard pass interception in the final frame. Roop's conversion kick made it 19-0.

Neahring also praised the Eagle linebackers as Scott Murphy had 17 tackles while Burke and Doug Lefelman had over 10 each.

Franklin Center finished the game with 134 yards rushing and 84 passing for a total of 218. Delhotal completed six of 11 passes.

The Eagles now host Pearl City next Saturday.

Rochelle now sports a 3-1 conference mark and a 5-2 season ledger. The Hubs travel to Hall next week.

Dixon offense sputters continually

Cavaliers defeat Dukes 14-0

By MIKE CUNIFF
Telegraph Sports Editor

PERU — The Dixon Dukes extended their scoreless streak to eight consecutive quarters, here, Friday and dropped a 14-0 decision to the La Salle-Peru Cavaliers on a rainy and cold night. The loss drops the Dukes' NCIC mark to 2-2 while L-P climbs to 3-1.

It was an ineffective offense continually sputtering for three quarters that cost Dixon a possible second place berth in the conference race and lowered the overall season mark to 2-5 with two contests remaining, with Kewanee and Rock Falls.

Fancy Statistics

The Dukes racked up a total of two yards in the opening quarter, seven in the second stanza and one in the third before quarterback Ned Vail completed four passes for 75 yards in the final frame. Toss in 13 rushing yards and Dixon posted a net of 98 yards for the 48 minutes.

Ed Merriman, a junior fullback for the Cavaliers who was starting the game in place of the suspended Jim Myers, outgained the Duke total by himself, with 108 yards rushing in 22 carries. Merriman cracked over from the one-yard line with 10:32 left in the second quarter to give the Cavaliers a 6-0 lead.

It was the eighth play of a 42-yard drive, after Vail punted out of his own end zone with 2:31 to go in the first stanza. The entire onslaught was conducted on the ground with quarterback Steve Brejc gaining a first down on a fourth-and-inches try, Ron Marini carrying three times for 17 yards and Merriman adding 22 on four attempts. Brejc threw the two-point conversion pass to tight end Bill Torchia.

Long Time Waiting

Dixon did not earn a legitimate first down until less than a minute remained in the half, when Vail clicked on his first pass (in seven throws) for 12 yards to Mike LeBlanc. The Dukes had earlier received a fresh set of downs when a blocking-below-the-waist penalty was called on L-P.

Vail's completion came on the first play after Mike James picked off a Cavalier pass, only to fall down with a clear path ahead up the left sidelines. Vail was sacked twice before the half expired, as Jeff Senica nailed the Duke quarterback for losses of eight and 12 yards.

The Cavaliers received the second half kickoff, with Merriman returning Matt Brandenburg's boot for 17 yards to the L-P 43 in the midst of the falling rain. L-P marched the remaining distance in 18 plays, with Brejc zooming up the middle for three yards and a touchdown with 1:26 showing on the clock.

Castillo Stops the Conversion

Brejc's six-pointer made it 14-0, but Bernie Castillo dropped Brejc on the conversion attempt. The Dukes could not move the ball and once again Vail was forced to punt. L-P returned the ball after three plays.

Vail finally got the team moving by converting passes of 17 yards to Steve Moore and seven yards to Ron Murray, but a fumble on a hand-off gave the home team possession once more. The Cavaliers gained a net of two yards in three plays and punted.

Vince Melendrez hauled in an aerial for 29 yards to move the ball to the L-P 41 with 1:20 to go. Vail was thrown for a loss of seven by Bob Grusk but came right back to hit Dan Kopacz for a pick-up of a dozen over the middle. On the final Dixon play, Vail was swarmed under by a host of L-P tacklers.

Marini Adds 39 Yards

Marini tacked on 39 yards on the ground for the Cavaliers in 13 carries, while Brejc had 21 in six. Randy Yepsen finished with six yards in four efforts and Keith Harvey had two in three jaunts.

L-P gained a total of 176 yards on the ground and did not have a completed pass in four attempts. Dixon had 98 total yards, with 11 rushing and 87 passing. Vail's loss of 30 yards (four sacks) offset 36 by LeBlanc in 10 carries. Reece Ashford managed five yards in three rushes, while Kopacz and James picked up two yards each in solitary carries. Randy Wakeley lost four in his only attempt.

Vail clicked on five of 19 passes, with five different receivers grabbing one apiece. Vail punted five times for a 31.2 average, while Leo Brown had a 33-yard norm for the Cavaliers in three kicks.

Dixon Sophomores Win

The Dixon sophomores rebounded from their loss to Sterling last week to defeat the L-P underclassmen 26-14, after trailing 14-8 after the first half. Bob Urbanski tallied twice on one-yard runs and added a two-point conversion to give the Incas their lead, with Gary Magnafici getting the Dukelet's first score on a three-yard dash. Randy Hazelwood's conversion run made it 14-8.

Dukelet quarterback Dan Frost tied it at 14-14 with a one-yard plunge in the third quarter, before Hazelwood zoomed 68 yards for what proved to be the winning touchdown. Magnafici sealed the victory with a 42-yard jaunt.

Chris Mullery helped out with a 55-yard pass reception which set up the first Dukelet touchdown. The Dixon sophomores are now 4-1-2 for the season.

Sport shorts

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Wide receiver Darryl Stingley, who suffered a broken left arm against the New York Jets last Sunday, is lost to the New England Patriots for the remainder of the 1974 National Football League season.

The unbeaten Patriots placed Stingley on the injured reserve list Friday and signed veteran wide receiver Ed Hinton as a free agent.

Hinton, a former Oklahoma star when New England Coach Chuck Fairbanks directed the Sooners, was a No. 1 draft choice by the Baltimore Colts in 1969. He played four years with Baltimore and with Houston last season.

Hinton will be in uniform Sunday when the Patriots seek their sixth victory against the Bills at Buffalo.

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A $600,000 damage suit has been filed in Superior Court against Sports Illustrated magazine, charging invasion of privacy.

Beauty shop operator Dorothy Bryant charged in the suit filed Friday that she has suffered ridicule and mockery because of a story in the magazine's April 15 issue.

She said the story portrayed her as running a $400-a-week business in her front yard during the week of the Masters Golf Tournament.

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — David Goldman of Dallas, and North Carolina tournament veteran Harry Welch, of Salisbury, faced off today for the North and South Men's Senior golf championship.

Welch, runnerup in last year's USGA national seniors tournament, toured the Pinehurst Country Club's No. 2 course in even par Friday in scoring a decisive 6-and-5 semifinal victory over Stan Hilinski of Manchester, Conn.

Goldman, picking up a double eagle on the par five eighth hole, went on to a 2-and-1 victory over Tom Draper of Troy, Mich. The Texan, for years one of the country's top senior golfers, was one over par for the route.

The No. 2 course, which plays at par 72, has been shortened to about 6,000 yards for the seniors in this 23rd annual event.

Goolagong meets Evert for largest prize

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Australia's Evonne Goolagong, who faces Chris Evert tonight for the largest prize ever offered in women's tennis, says she's more interested in winning than the money.

Miss Goolagong kept a steady hand and took advantage of Billie Jean King's spotty play to defeat the Californian, 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 in the semifinals Friday night.

Miss Evert, who is top-seeded, had little trouble defeating fourth-seeded Virginia Wade, 6-4, 6-2.

Miss Evert and Miss Goolagong meet tonight in the singles finals of the $100,000 tennis championship, with $32,000 going to the winner.

Despite the money, Miss Goolagong said, "I think it's more important that I win it. I don't really think how much I'll get."

Although she had some lapses in the second set against Ms. King, Miss Goolagong played a near-flawless game when she had to late in the deciding set.

Ms. King, as she prefers to be known, made several errors, hitting one ball into the net in the final set and then hitting the ball out to decide the match.

In a doubles semifinal, Francois Durr of France and Betty Stove of the Netherlands defeated Mona Schallau of Iowa City, Iowa, and Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles, 6-1, 6-3.

Late goal boosts Cougars

VANCOUVER (AP) — Francois Rochon's goal with 1:41 left to play gave the Chicago Cougars a 2-1 World Hockey Association victory over the Vancouver Blazers Friday night.

Bob Liddington put Chicago ahead 1-0 30 seconds into the second period after a scoreless first frame, but Duane Rupp tied it 1-1 at 7:59 of the frame on an unassisted tally.

Rochon had not scored in the Cougar's five exhibition games. Chicago only managed 17 shots on Blazer goalie Don McLeod, while Vancouver took 23 shots at Cam Newton in the Cougars' net.

CHICAGO (AP) — Nate Thurmond wasted little time in giving the Chicago Bulls dividends in their major trade to get a big man at center.

Thurmond, a 6-foot-11 giant, blocked 12 shots and scored 22 points Friday night to lead the Bulls to a 120-115 overtime victory over the Atlanta Hawks in a National Basketball Association game.

Thurmond's heroics notwithstanding, the Bulls needed the efforts of rookie Bob Wilson to win the game.

WFL's Blazers talk boycott

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The financially-troubled Florida Blazers of the World Football League may have a new owner next week, but they may not have a team to play next Wednesday's game at Charlotte, N.C.

Attorneys for the WFL and Blazers said Friday that the franchise would be sold to unidentified buyers by next weekend.

But quarterback Bob Davis said the players would meet today and vote on possibly boycotting the Charlotte game. The players haven't been paid in seven weeks and Davis said, "All I can say is that 90 per cent of the players are broke."

WFL attorney Michael Walsh said all back salaries and other debts would be paid by the new owners when the sale was closed. He added the WFL would pay the players if the sale fell through.

The WFL issued two-week paychecks to the team last Saturday. But it stopped payment on the checks Monday on the basis the league was violating a court order obtained by team managing general partner Rommie Loudd.

Loudd had obtained a temporary restraining order to stop the WFL takeover of the club. The WFL had revoked the franchise for its failure to cover an estimated $2 million in debts.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
This is a good day to make two changes you've been considering. Once you have, put them out of your mind and move on to something else.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
Plan your day so you do all the fun things early. Toward evening your attention will be drawn to more serious matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Today you require a bit more physical exercise. Plan something out-of-doors and active but don't overdo.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
You need some active form of social outlet today where you're doing something different. If you have a Libran pal, call him up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You may have to take a position on a family issue today. Stand firm. Others will come around to your views.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
This is the time to awaken in others an interest in your ideas. Contact persons who fit into plans you now have in mind.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Don't be hesitant about asking favors you need from one who can help you. The longer you wait, the more it weakens your chances.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
It's not likely the group you'll be involved with today will get things organized properly unless you step up and take over control.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
The best things come to you by just sitting tight and not making any unnecessary waves. Drift with events.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
You're still at your best in dealing with groups rather than just one person. Go where the action is — where your friends are gathered.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
Continue to exert all the effort you can muster toward matters that are of major importance. Think "win" — and you will.

Mounders upend Oregon 7-0

By CONNI DETTMAN
Telegraph Sports Writer

MT. MORRIS—Temperatures dipped down to the low 40s and the fans were bouncing on their toes to keep warm. Then, just before the start of the game, the heavens opened up and the rain poured down.

The players lined themselves up helmet to helmet, staring at their foes and fighting through four quarters of rain before the final gun went off.

This was what the crowd expected as the Mounders and the Hawks matched muscle and strategy, but what the crowd didn't expect was a Mt. Morris 7-0 upset over Oregon, here, Friday night.

The two teams battled back and forth in the first quarter, with each side taking possession of the ball three times. The Mounders did manage to hold on to the ball for a longer period of time as they consistently worked on a ground game against a loose Hawk defense.

The rains soon started to fall harder and both teams began making a few mistakes. Several penalties threw each team for major 15-yard losses, while Oregon was beginning to have difficulty holding the Mt. Morris line.

Each team was basically sticking to a ground game since the rain made passing conditions intolerable. The Mounders slowly began to move to a passing game, once the rains stopped, and then managed to push hard on the Hawk goal line.

The first and only touchdown of the game started on a Mt. Morris drive late in the first quarter. With 3:33 left in the quarter, the Mounders had the ball first and 10 on their own 40-yard line. An incomplete pass from the quarterback to Pat Goley and then John Mueller was cut down behind the line to make it third down 11. Quarterback Dan Waddell then connected on a short pass to Brad Claussen, moving the Mounders into Hawk territory.

Donn Claussen, Chip Bergman and Jeff Condit then moved the ball deep inside the Hawk zone before Condit took the ball for the score, at 11:56 on the second quarter.

The Hawks had trouble moving the ball on the wet soggy ground. While on offense, the front line could not control the Moulder rush, forcing Oregon to have repeat plays with no yards gained or a loss on the play.

The biggest Oregon threat came half way through the second quarter. The Mounders fumbled the ball on a punt and, after managing to get the kick away from the three-yard line and a holding penalty against the Mounders, Oregon had the ball first and 10 on the Mt. Morris 20-yard line.

Oregon moved the ball to second and five on the 15-yard line but, after being thrown for two consecutive losses followed by an incomplete play, Mt. Morris took over first and 10 on the 20-yard line.

The Mounders continued to grind out yardage on the ground with several complete passes going for major yard pickups. Mt. Morris, with a consistent drive, came close to scoring a second touchdown as they dominated the clock in the fourth quarter.

The drive for the second score began on the Moulder 16-yard line. Several short passes and continued pressure around the left side placed the ball in the Hawk territory before the Mounders' Brad Claussen took a pass and ran it 34 yards down to the Hawk four-yard line.

Oregon was down by one touchdown and the Mounders were on the doorstep of another score, but the Hawks weren't ready to quit yet. With first and 10 on the three-yard line, Oregon held on defense to take possession of the ball on the one-yard line.

The Hawks took the ball over in the fourth quarter and connected on a pass to take it into Moulder territory, but Mt. Morris intercepted a pass to run it back. The Hawks held Mt. Morris and the Mounders wound up on top in the 7-0 victory.

Oakland looks to next year but . . .

Will A's manager be back?

By ERIC PREWITT
AP Sports Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — The Oakland A's often-divided clubhouse, which has stood successfully through three turbulent World Series, could have another new manager in charge next year.

"It was a privilege to manage this team," said Alvin Dark, who gave no indication at a victory celebration Friday whether he intends to be back in 1975, when a fourth straight baseball title will be the A's goal.

"Alvin Dark, when he took this job, had everything to lose and nothing to gain," said team owner Charles O. Finley to a crowd of several thousand fans at the end of a parade through downtown Oakland.

"Alvin and I have been too busy to talk about next season," Finley added, "but he's done an exceptionally great job and, if he wants it, the job is his next year."

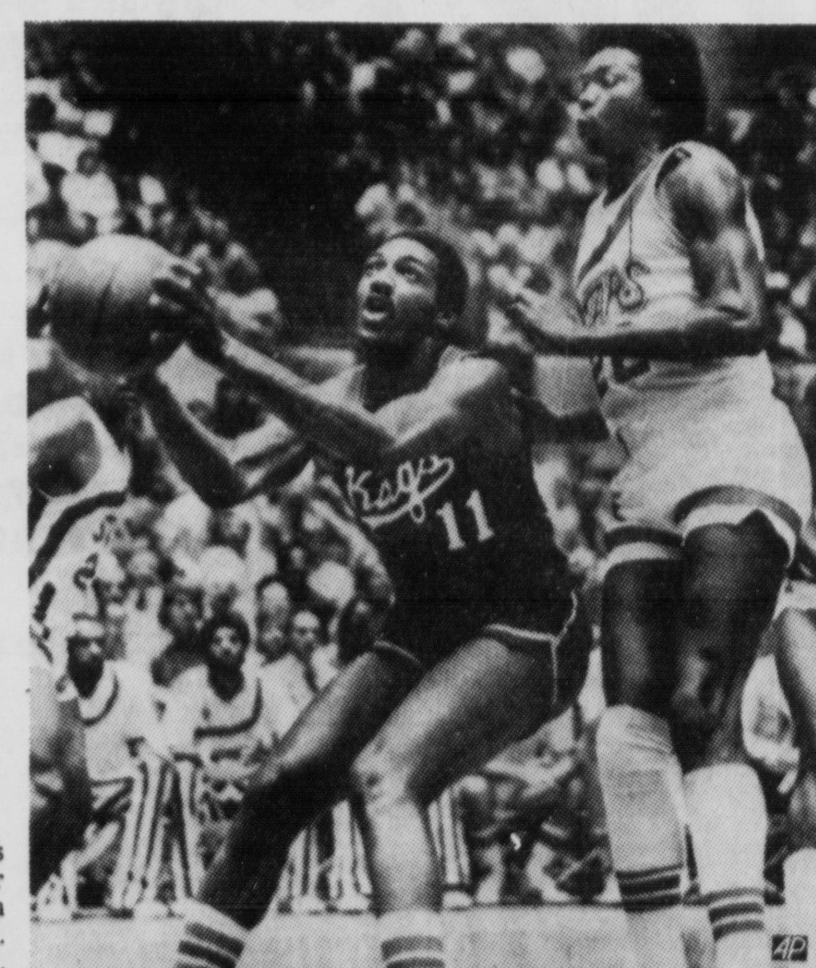

Dark said, "I'm indebted to Mr. Finley for giving me the chance to manage here," but he doesn't plan to announce a decision about his 1975 plans until talking to, first, his wife and, second, to Finley.

The job of managing the two-time world champs became vacant when Dick Williams walked out of a long-term contract following the 1973 World Series. Dark, fired by Finley at Kansas City in 1967, was out of a job and jumped at the opportunity to return to the A's.

"They're a great bunch of guys," Dark said of the team which finished off the National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers in a five-game World Series despite the customary clubhouse fight between pitchers John "Blue Moon" Odom and Rollie Fingers on the eve of the opening game.

"We may fight in the clubhouse or in the hotel, but it's 100 per cent baseball when we go on the field," said Catfish Hunter, whose lawyers are ready to take on Finley over an alleged breach of contract.

Hunter was one of the few A's players who missed Friday's parade, a mile-long procession that included several bands.

The only other club in baseball history to win at least three World Series in a row was the New York Yankees, who had four-year (1936-39) and five-year (1949-53) streaks.

Now the A's are saying, "Keep it alive in '75."

Warriors win

The Washington Warriors romped to a 38-8 victory over Jefferson to boost their season Junior Tackle ledger to 7-0 at A. C. Bowers Field on Tuesday. Dave Cole zipped through the Jefferson defense for four touchdowns while John Cole added the fifth score. The winners added four of five two-point conversion attempts.

Winning streaks in danger

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

The strings grow longer but at least two of them are in danger of being cut.

The New England Patriots, St. Louis Cardinals and Minnesota Vikings have strung together five successive victories while Dallas has been roped four straight times.

While the Cards appear to have a solid shot at making it six in a row in their game at Houston and Minnesota is favored to beat visiting Detroit, the Pats are underdogs to the Bills in Buffalo and the odds-makers say the Cowboys will rebound against Philadelphia.

In Sunday's other games, it's Cincinnati at Oakland, Cleveland at Pittsburgh, Kansas City at Miami, the New York Giants at Washington, San Francisco at Los Angeles, New Orleans at Atlanta, San Diego at Denver and Baltimore at the New York Jets. On Monday night, it's Green Bay at Chicago.

Buffalo center Mike Montler says the Bills' enthusiastic fans will make the difference against the Pats.

The Cowboys, 1-4, are fighting for their lives, staggering under the weight of four straight losses that began with a 13-10 loss to Philadelphia. The Eagles, 4-1, trail only St. Louis in the National Conference East.

There are some encouraging notes for the Cowboys, though. The Eagles haven't won in Dallas since 1965. And Dallas still has the top offense in the NFC while the Eagles are 13th in total defense.

The Cardinals are gunning to beat their best season-starting record of 1966, when they won their first five games and tied their sixth before losing. In the teams' only previous meeting, St. Louis bombed the Oilers 44-0 in 1970.

Minnesota is still unbeaten and untied — but the Lions, who picked up their first victory last Monday night, came within a point of spoiling that perfect mark, losing 7-6 four weeks ago.

The Raiders have never lost to Cincinnati at home in this clash of AFC divisional leaders. The Bengals have the AFC's No. 2 passer in Ken Anderson — but Oakland has the conference's No. 2 pass defense.

The Browns are all but out of the AFC Central race with their 1-4 record — and they haven't won in Pittsburgh since 1969.

The Dolphins are in a real dogfight to keep alive their chances of repeating as AFC East champs and Super Bowl defenders. Kansas City's in a real fight to learn how to hold onto the ball.

The Redskins, still in the thick of the NFC race with a 3-2 mark, can all but kyo the Giants' playoff chances with a victory.

Question on pardon still remains

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's historic testimony on his pardon for former President Richard M. Nixon has drawn high praise from congressmen for candor, but sharp disagreement on whether he laid the pardon controversy to rest.

Ford assured a House Judiciary subcommittee and a nationwide television audience Thursday "there was no deal, period" for the pardon and said he is convinced he did not grant it too hastily.

Subcommittee members split afterwards on whether Ford's testimony settled the matter, and Chairman William L. Hungate, D-Mo., said the inquiry on the pardon may continue after Congress returns Nov. 18 from its election campaign recess.

Subcommittee Democrats called for more witnesses involved in the pardon consultations, including former White House chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr., Ford counsel Phillip Buchen and possibly outgoing special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

Most Republicans agreed with Ford the subcommittee should end the inquiry so the country can "shift our attention from the pursuit of a fallen president to the pursuit of the urgent needs of a rising nation."

"This certainly should be the end of it," said Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., "It's time to lay off the President."

But Rep. Bella S. Abzug, D-N.Y., author of one of the formal resolutions of inquiry that Ford appeared to answer, said "this is just a beginning."

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., contended Ford's testimony "raised more questions than it answered."

It was under Miss Holtzman's questioning, on how Ford could answer the "suspensions raised" in the public mind on whether the pardon was part of a deal, that Ford interrupted to make one of his major points.

"I want to assure you ... and the members of Congress and the American people that there was no deal, period, under no circumstances," he said.

Ford said the first mention ever made to him of a pardon for Nixon came from Haig during a meeting Aug. 1 — nine days before Nixon resigned — at which he said Haig also informed him of upcoming "devastating, even catastrophic" disclosures that might remove Nixon from office.

A Ford pardon for Nixon was one of six alternatives Haig listed, Ford testified. He said Haig did not advocate any of the options.

Ford said he was shocked and stunned by the word that he might be about to become president, and told Haig he would think about what to do overnight.

He said his decision was to do nothing and that he told Haig to make that clear to Nixon because he believed a vice president should take no action that could bring his own elevation to the presidency.

Ford said Haig gave him details on the upcoming "devastating" disclosures of White House tapes on which Nixon gave the go-ahead to try to curb the first FBI investigation into Nixon re-election money involvement in the Watergate burglary.

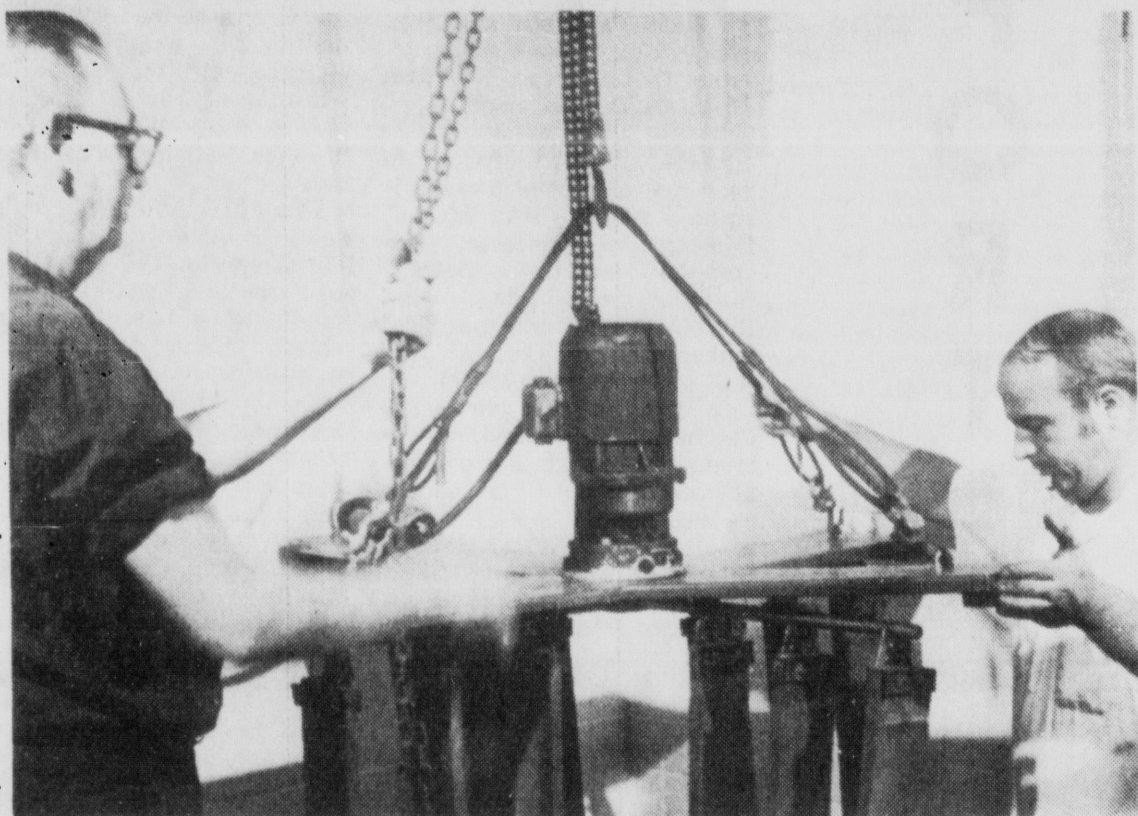

Ford testified that even though he knew those details he continued to say at press conferences the following weekend that he believed Nixon was innocent of any impeachable offense because he was afraid any change in that position "would lead in the press to conclusions that I now wanted to see the President resign."

Ford testified at the hearing that the House Judiciary Committee's vote of impeachment articles against Nixon was evidence of Nixon's guilt of obstruction of justice in the Watergate burglary. He also testified that Nixon's acceptance of the pardon according to a White House research memorandum "does in effect admit guilt."

Rep. Wiley Mayne, R-Iowa, said he was still convinced Ford should have waited until Nixon was indicted before pardoning him and asked if Ford did not agree he had "acted too hastily."

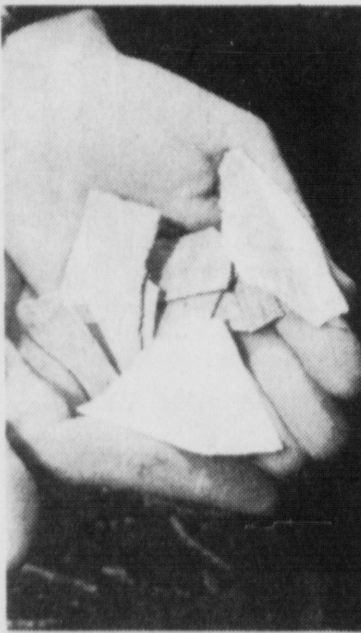

The President replied that he knew that is the major question in many people's minds, but that after considerations he had concluded he was right to grant the pardon when he did.

New York silver mine

Silver is mined in the strangest places — New York City for instance where Honeywell photographic laboratories recover about four ounces of silver from every 1,000 rolls of color film they process. With silver's price climbing from $1.28 an ounce three years ago to the current $6.50, the photographic industry is especially interested in developing new methods of recycling this precious metal since photo companies are the world's largest consumer of silver — 45 million ounces a year.

The two most common recovery methods are the steel wool system and electrolytic installation. In the former, sludge containing silver particles accumulated from photo processing, is strained through cans filled with steel wool, top right. The recovered silver is then sent on to a refinery for finishing and eventual resale. In the electrolytic installation method, workers utilize an electrolytic recovery chamber, top left, where regenerated chemicals rotate around stainless steel plates on which the silver collects. The plates are removed from the chamber and left to dry before workers chip off the hardened silver, bottom left. The dried silver chips, bottom right, are then sent to the refinery.

Slaughtered cattle to aid Honduras victims

CUBA CITY, Wis. (AP)—The federal government may transport the meat of slaughtered Wisconsin calves to Honduras, rather than see them killed by knife and gun and dumped into open pits, a farm spokesman said Friday.

"Just say that they called from the White House this morning and developments are taking place," said Jim Runde, 51, treasurer of the Wisconsin National Farmers Organization. NFO members participated in a dramatic demonstration Tuesday to protest high feed costs which make it impractical for them to fatten livestock for market.

NFO farmers near Curtiss in south-central Wisconsin had shot or slit the throats of 636 calves and shoved them into 7-foot-deep pits, rather than continue feeding them at a loss.

"We won't do this now," Runde said. "The Dubuque (Iowa) Packing Co. has agreed to process the carcasses, and developments are progressing in Washington to take care of shipments to Honduras."

Honduras was hit recently by a hurricane, leaving thousands homeless and suffering from food shortages.

"No calves have been killed in southern Wisconsin yet," Runde continued. "But if Dubuque Packing had not went along and processed them, and the government not pick them up, you bet we would have killed them. We'd have buried them near Cuba City."

He said the calves killed Tuesday "were offered to a packing company in northern Wisconsin Monday, but they wouldn't take them. They absolutely refused and it left us only one alternative."

Runde said farmers in eastern Iowa and northern Illinois are also offering calves for slaughter to call attention to the price squeeze on livestock feeders.

"We're getting deluged with calls from both NFO and non-NFO farmers who want to donate their calves. We're getting a lot of support," Runde said.

"And let's set the record straight. Over half of those farmers at Curtiss had tears in their eyes when they were killing those calves. But when you can raise a calf a whole year and they're worth less than when you bought them, something's got to be done. We've also got our labor, investment and feed costs in there."

"All we asked from the federal government was to help with the shipment to Honduras. We don't want any more programs from them or any damned thing."

"We only want to get the consumer off our backs and tell what a good buy food is, instead of food and farmers being blamed as the reason for inflation."

He said beef cattle that brought $500 at market last year "are worth $250 this year."

"We had to kill those calves. It's a shame when you take inventory at the end of the year and find cattle are worth less than they were the year before. But bankers don't like it and nobody else does."

Management of utilities questioned

NEW YORK (AP) — Few people waste any sympathy on electric utilities. Utilities always are big and impersonal, and often they are over-computerized and unresponsive. Many critics claim they are poorly managed.

The product they supply is taken for granted, and their bills therefore usually seem excessive. They are unwelcome neighbors too, accused of erecting ugly, even dangerous plants, and of polluting the air and water.

Their image often is that of self-interest and arrogance, a perception sometimes reinforced by appearances and actions. They often are nepotistic. It is assumed by cynics that they have compromised the power regulators.

Even their investors seldom have anything nice to say to them, at least of a personal nature. Occasionally they are complimented on the regularity and size of their dividends, but usually that is expected of utilities.

But now the utilities need sympathy. The mighty mastodons of industry have fallen into a trap that seems to get deeper the harder they try to escape.

See if you can solve the puzzle:

1. Because of the expensive equipment needed to operate utilities, they are very heavy borrowers. Interest rates have risen sharply, greatly adding to their costs. In some instances this forces them to borrow even more.

2. Their credit rating falls, forcing them to pay more.

3. They consider cutting dividends, but this would lead inevitably to lower stock prices, thus eliminating or reducing that source of capital.

4. Having no choice, the utility skips the dividend, which automatically forecloses the

Beef prices fall again

DENVER (AP)—The American National Cattlemen's Association says retail beef prices have fallen an average 11 cents a pound in the last month.

The association said Thursday its 19-city survey indicates that beef prices are down an average of 25 cents a pound since February.

The latest survey, conducted on Oct. 10, showed the average price of five selected cuts was $1.38 a pound, compared with $1.49 in September and $1.63 in February, the association said.

Per-pound ground-beef prices dropped three cents to an average of 84 cents; round steak was down 16 cents; sirloin steak dropped six cents; T-bone prices were off by 18 cents, and chuck steak declined by 10 cents a pound, according to the association.

"The reduction in beef prices is a result of sharply lower cattle prices, reflecting increases in total beef production. And it looks as though beef prices will continue favorable for consumers in the weeks ahead," said Gordon Van Vleck, association president.

"Unfortunately for our industry, however, cattle prices are now sharply below today's extremely high feed and other costs. And the continuing financial losses will jeopardize our ability to produce beef in the future," Van Vleck said.

The association said beef prices were highest in Washington, where the average was $1.63 a pound, and lowest in Phoenix, $1.05 a pound.

Demo gather forces to override veto on Information Act

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key Democrats plan to press Congress to override President Ford's veto of what he brands an "unconstitutional and unworkable" bill to amend the Freedom of Information Act.

The bill, overturning a 1973 Supreme Court decision in a secrecy-stamping case and closing what the measure's authors call major loopholes in the law, could adversely affect intelligence secrets and diplomatic relations, Ford said as he vetoed it Thursday.

"The President is demonstrating an arrogance that would be unbelievable if a man holding a mandate from the people occupied the office of the presidency. But it is unbelievable, almost incredible, arrogance for a man whose only mandate came from a single congressional district," said Rep. John E. Moss, D-Calif., who headed an 11-year drive for the Freedom of Information Act enacted in 1967.

The Supreme Court decided that a president could classify documents basically free of judicial review. This bill would give federal courts power to see if documents were properly classified.

Ford argued that this would mean courts would be allowed to make what amounts to "the initial classification decision in sensitive and complex areas where they have no expertise."

Moss, in a telephone interview from Sacramento, Calif., said, "I would rather trust the courts, and I think their action through the whole unhappy history of Watergate proves that we can place our confidence in the judicial system of this nation."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., who headed Senate supporters of the legislation, termed Ford's veto "a distressing new example of the Watergate mentality that still pervades the White House." The bill is "a major effort by Congress to insure that the public's business is carried out in public," Kennedy added, saying he will work for a veto override.

Moss, predicting Congress will override the veto, said there is "no validity to the fears expressed by the President.... He is buying the old line of the intelligence and defense community that all information they have is sacrosanct."

The Freedom of Information Act provides that a citizen may see any government document except for nine exempt categories ranging from trade secrets to law-enforcement investigatory records.

Under the bill, right-to-know cases would gain precedence on appeal-court dockets; a 30-day time limit would be fixed for government replies to lawsuits; there would be a narrowing of agencies' power to withhold investigatory files compiled for law enforcement reasons; and agencies would be required to keep an index of documents so the public could keep track of them.

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE B-672: Rev. Luke, aged 41, voices a widespread complaint against Uncle Sam.

"Dr. Crane," he began, "bureaucrats are now killing voluntary philanthropy."

"So they are just as much a threat to our churches as they are to our 'free enterprise' employers out in the private sector of our economy."

"Church people are now being charged such heavy taxes that they have little left for their churches or the Boy and Girl Scouts, or even the United Fund."

"For example, this year an 11 per cent boost in the monthly Social Security checks occurred, divided by 7 per cent in April and 4 per cent more in July."

"Instead, why didn't Uncle Sam cut back 10 per cent, thus letting the Senior Citizens have as much buying power with their former checks as by the new checks, boosted 11 per cent?"

"Well, isn't it because this is an election year? And those 2 boosts of 7 per cent and 4 per cent were staggered to make a greater appeal for votes among the oldsters?"

"Don't the members of Congress mimic Biblical Aaron, to insure their own reelection and big salaries, regardless of principle?"

Charity's Dry Well

Rev. Luke's reference to Biblical Aaron refers to the chameleon behavior of that former High Priest of Jehovah. For when the mob revolted against Moses and demanded that Aaron make them an idol (Golden Calf), he quickly agreed, for Aaron was apparently more interested in keeping his job than in allegiance to Jehovah!

Same goes for many U.S. Congressmen as well as state legislators!

For example, when it seemed a good vote-buying gesture, Congress passed bills to bus children out of their home school districts, far across town to distant school rooms.

But in this year of 1974, the pendulum has swung back, for the growing ire of the citizenry back home, has percolated to Congress.

The Worry Clinic

So it then voted against school busing. Why?

Because the Nov. 5 election is soon to occur!

And on many other occasions, Congress has glibly passed unwise bills because the uninformed populace seemed favorable to such action just before election day.

Then, maybe two to four years later, in another election year, Congress learns that the public whim has changed, so our legislators nullify their former bill by enacting a new law to countermand it!

Alas, Congress still panders to the large city welfare voting blocks, who blackmail both the Democratic and Republican candidates by threats of casting ballots for the party that offers them the larger increase in welfare checks and ADC (Aid to Dependent Children).

Most of the welfare recipients are not productive citizens, for they aren't raising soy beans, wheat or corn, or working as carpenters, plumbers and masons, or running offices, stores and other private businesses.

They contribute little more to health of Uncle Sam than wood ticks do to sheep or cattle!

Yet they are turning former statesmen into politicians, who are concerned primarily with their own reelection vs. the preservation of this Republic.

Our Founding Fathers didn't approve of letting non-producers in the private sector, then vote in elections, which is why the District of Columbia was disfranchised till 1969.

Today in history

By The Associated Press
Today is Saturday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1974. There are 73 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1781, the Revolutionary War neared its end as the British surrendered at Yorktown, Virginia.

On this date —

In 1735, the second American president, John Adams, was born in Braintree, Massachusetts.

In 1812, French forces under Napoleon Bonaparte began their retreat from Moscow.

In 1912, the Bulgarians began the siege of the Turkish city of Adrianople in the Balkan wars.

In 1942, in World War II, American planes bombed Japanese troops and supply concentrations on Guadalcanal.

In 1954, Britain and Egypt agreed to a withdrawal of British troops from the Suez Canal zone.

In 1960, Dr. Martin Luther King and 52 other blacks were arrested during a sit-down demonstration in a department store in Atlanta.

Ten years ago: New Soviet leaders made their first public appearance since the overthrow of Nikita Khrushchev, at ceremonies honoring three cosmonauts.

Five years ago: Two armed passengers from East Germany hijacked a Polish airliner and forced it to land in West Berlin.

One year ago: Libya, angered by American Middle East policy, ordered a halt of all oil shipments to the U.S. and nearly doubled prices.

Today's birthdays: Columnist Jack Anderson is 52 years old.

Thought for today: The chief problem when you retire is how to spend a lot of time without spending a lot of money — anonymous.

BILLY GRAHAM says about the new motion picture "Time to Run"...

There is no doubt that today we see the family unit being attacked from every side, torn apart and fragmented. TIME TO RUN is a motion picture about a family, about listening, about the silences between people, the unspoken moments, and the moments of anger that don't really accomplish anything. TIME TO RUN openly offers the reality of Jesus Christ as an answer to the human dilemma.

I feel that thousands of people will see a part of themselves in the film. Hopefully, families seeing it will be brought closer together in real understanding and communication.

I urge you to take your children... or your parents... to see TIME TO RUN when it comes to your community. You may find it more of a mirror than a motion picture!
